The Trade in Canaries.

The importation of canaries from Germany to this country amounts to nearly 80,000 birds every year. The importation began about the year 1847, and has been steadily increasing ever since. Almost without exception the imported canaries now come from the little town of Andreasberg, in Hanover, Prussia. The town nestles among the Hartz mountains, and most of the men are miners; the mines of cobalt, lead, nickel and iron being among the best in that part of the country. The women of the town, the population of which numbers about 4,000 souls, make almost as much money as the men by breeding canaries. The industry sprang up about 150 years ago, and has since been carried on steadily, certain families having world-wide reputations among bird fanciers for the peculiar excellence of their birds, the training of the birds being a matter of skill handed down in families from generation to generation. The birds pair in February and begin to come to this country about June. They come in chairs of little boxes, such as they are sold in, 200 in a crate, and the losses on the voyage are usually very small, not amounting to more than 5 per cent. The little wooden cages in which the birds are imported and sold are made by the children and women of the Hartz mountains, and cost there 4 cents apiece. Dealers pay an average price of 50 cents for their birds and take the risk of transportation. There is no duty on canaries. The highest-priced birds come from Belgium, and are recognized at a glance by their long, thin forms. In New York a fair Belgian singer is worth six to ten dollars, but excellent Andreasberg birds which sing pleasantly may be bought here at from two to three dollars. A canary has no natural song, and if not taught will not sing at all. Bird fanciers say that American-bred canaries are of no great value because their notes never possess the musical qualities of imported birds. No reason for this degeneration is known unless, as is surmised, the German canaries profit by the nightingales, linnets and other birds which they hear and which can not be brought to this country.

LOVE IN A COTTAGE.—For a few years it looked as though housekeeping would have to be left to the Vanderbilts and the Bennetts and the Rothschilds and to railroad mortals, and that all the remainder of the human race would need to take cheap lodgings, but with a singe movement of her little finger fashion has ushered in an era in which a cottage is as fashionable as a palace. A few hundred dollars—about six hundred—will equip two souls for keeping house, because the modern bride is an artist and can make $10 go a long way toward decorating the home; and the style given to the cabinet maker are amazing for simplicity. With the reduction of the cost in furniture, and with the young wife as general decorator, keeping house at once becomes possible, and "love in a cottage" is suddenly the hight of fashion. Nor is this a fashion that will suddenly change.—Beauty and simplicity have been many centuries in finding each other, but they have met not to part.

In a recent lecture in England by Isaac N. Arnold, of Chicago, an old friend of Abraham Lincoln, upon the life and character of the Martyr President, he said: "It is strange that any reader of Lincoln's speeches and writings should have the hardihood to charge him with infidelity, but the charge having been repeatedly made, I reply, in the light of facts accessible to all, that no more reverent Christian (not excepting Washington) ever filled the chair of President. Declarations of his trust in God, his faith in the efficacy of prayer, pervade his speeches and writings. From the time he left Springfield to his death he not only himself continually prayed for Divine assistance, but never failed to ask the prayers of others for himself and his country."

A Curiosity.

For some years the following sentence has stood as the shortest into which all the letters of the alphabet could be compressed:

"J. Gray, pack with my box five dozen quails."

The above sentence contains thirty-three letters. A Utica gentleman recently improved on it as follows, using only thirty-two letters:

"Quack, glad zephyrs, waft my jave in box."

George W. Pierce, a Boston lawyer, has now forced twenty-six letters of the alphabet into a sentence of only thirty-one letters, as below:

"Z. Badger: Thy vixen jumps quick at fowl."

Rich music—A million air.

How They Put the Cow in the Yard.

There is nothing that demands statesmanship of a high order as much as the driving of a cow with a young calf to any particular place. Two Galveston colored men undertook a job of this character, and, although they gave the matter their careful attention, the result was very far from satisfactory to anybody except the cow, which seemed to enjoy it very much. Sam and Bill were to get a dollar to take the cow and calf and put them in the yard of the owner, Mr. Thomas Carlyle, who lives at the south end of Galveston avenue. After trying in vain to get the cow to understand in what direction they preferred she should go, Sam and Bill called a cabinet meeting, at which the following campaign plan was agreed upon: Sam was to take up the calf in his arms and go ahead, while Bill was to hold the cow back by the rope which was fastened to her horns.

"Ef she goes too fast," said Bill, "I'll jest hold her back."

"And ef she don't foller fast enough I'll jest twist de calf's tail, and den she will come right along," said Sam.

Sam took up the calf and went ahead while Bill, in order to get a real good hold, tied the rope around his wrist. The procession proceeded slowly in the desired direction, and would have reached its destination in safety had not Satan tempted Bill to get off a joke on Sam, so he called out:

"Sam, jess twist de calf's tail."

Sam did so, and the calf bleated as if it was opposed to an encore to the performance.

The old cow began to trot. So did Sam, holding on to the calf as if he had stolen it. Then the fun began, for every once in a while the cow would polish her horns on the ceilings of Sam's pants. Bill could not get his hands out of the rope, and, as he had short legs, he had hard work keeping up with the procession, or rather in not letting go. He ran so fast that the kinks of his wool straightened out. Finally he gasped:

"Sam, ontwist dat calf's tail."

Sam's legs moved so rapidly that they looked like the spokes of a buggy, but he called back:

"Foah God's sake! niggah, don't let go dat rope; de cow's againin' on me."

"Drop de calf, Sam," cried poor Bill, whose arm was coming out of its socket. "Drap de calf, for I can't keep up wid de cow. Go slow, niggah, or I'll turn de cow loose on you," which, however, was more than he was able to do.

Bill made the next fifty yards on his back, he still most unwillingly retaining his hold on the rope. Fortunately, the cow overtook Sam, and, in return for his kindness in picking up the calf, she picked him up on her horns and threw him over into Mr. Carlyle's yard. Bill, who was rather tired of chasing the cow, thought he would climb over and see what Sam was doing. The cow appeared to understand his wishes in that direction, so she started on a run to help him out, or rather over. She was a little late, but he went about ten feet further into the field than he would have done without her assistance. There was neither of them so badly hurt as they were when old Carlyle came and told them that the contract was that they should put the cow in the yard. Instead of that the cow had put them in the yard, so the dollar belonged to himself as the owner of the cow.

It is thought a lawsuit will grow out of the matter.—Galveston News.

Able to Support Themselves.

The imperial family of Germany is quite able to support itself. If the Crown Prince were deprived of his inheritance he could easily win bread and butter by his skill as a turner; while his eldest son, Prince Wilhelm, is an excellent amateur artisan. On the Emperor's cabinet are several samples of his dead grandson Waldemar's proficiency as a bookbinder. This acquisition of a trade is in accordance with the traditionary customs in the royal family, which prescribe that every Prince of the blood shall learn some useful handicraft, so as to strengthen his spirit of independence and make him wise through actual contact with the material world.

Keeping the Patient Quiet.

"He seems to be much worse to-day," said the doctor, as he contemplated the patient. "Did you keep him perfectly quiet, as I directed, nurse?"

"Sakes a massey! of course I did," replied the nurse. "Goodness gracious! he hasn't moved all night."

"Anything going on in the house to disturb him?"

"My sakes, of course not. They had a little dancing party in the parlor, and a fight up stairs, and some burglars got into the basement, and the servant girl set fire to her bed, and the fat boarder fell down the second flight, and the man in the next room licked his wife, and the water-pipe busted on the floor below, and the gentleman in the back parlor gave a little supper, and there was some music in the third story, and the cat got out upon the back fence, and there was a baby born in the second floor front, and the little girl up the third pair died in the night, but he never moved. Bless you heart, he was the quietest man you ever saw!"

"Quite right; quite right; did you give him the pills?"

"My gracious! I forgot the pills, but I gave him all the powders, and all the quinine powders and the mixtures, three of 'em, and all but the pills."

"Just so. Did you change the bandages on his head?"

"It wasn't any use. He wouldn't keep 'em on. You never saw anything like him. I put four pillows on his head, and he kept still as mice after that."

"I see. Was he delirious during the night?"

"Oh! wasn't he? but he hasn't hollered much for two hours. He's been pretty quiet since he fell out of bed. Before that he was restless."

"Of course, naturally. Any of his friends been to see him?"

"There were ten or a dozen here all night, playing cards and enjoying themselves. But he paid no attention to them."

"I suppose not. Hasn't asked for anything, has he?"

"Not for a long time. He's doing well, isn't he, doctor?"

"Yes, yes, as well as could be expected. As near as I can judge, he has been dead about twelve hours. You needn't continue the medicines. Just keep him quiet and don't let anybody talk to him. What he wants now is rest."

And the doctor certified to the reliability of the nurse, and departed.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Curious Calculations.

If we suppose the distance between the earth and the sun (about ninety-two and one-third millions of miles) to be reduced to a dozen rods or more, the size of the two globes to be reduced in the same proportion, the distance from the earth to the nearest fixed star would still be, on the same scale, about 9,000 miles, and to the more distant ones it would be not less than 18,000,000 miles.

From those more distant stars the light must travel for sixty centuries before it reaches us—and yet light travels so fast that it would circle round the earth more than seven times in a single second of time. If the sun could be reduced, in imagination, to 1-100 of an inch in diameter, the earth would then be of microscopic size, about 1-10,000 of an inch, but the distance between it and the nearest star would not be less than three miles. If the sun were a hollow sphere and the earth were placed at its center, with the moon revolving around it in its established orbit, there would still be a distance of 200,000 miles from the lunar orbit to the surface of the solar sphere.

If these relations of size and distance are inconceivable, the forces which compel the planets to move in their elliptical orbits are quite as much beyond our comprehension. A bar of steel three inches square will sustain a weight of 540 tons, but a bar having a section of 144 square inches would sustain 8,640 tons, which upon a railroad would require 864 cars to support it and twenty-three locomotives to transport it. To deflect the moon from a straight course into its present orbit, or, what is the same thing, to retain it in its present course, would require the united strength of not less than eight steel bars, each 100 miles square, or, more accurately, a single bar whose section is 87,500 square miles—more than large enough to cover the States of New York and Ohio together. If this force were represented by a web of steel wires, each one-quarter of an inch in diameter, stretched from the earth to the moon, they would be distributed over our earth on the moon side only six inches apart, and if a similar web were stretched from the earth to the sun the force exerted between these two bodies would require the wires to cover one side of the earth as close together as blades of grass upon a lawn.—Prof. C. B. Waring.

REMEDY FOR LOCKJAW.—Let any one who has an attack of lockjaw take a small quantity of turpentine, warm it, and pour it on the wound, no matter where the wound is, and relief will follow in less than a minute. Nothing better can be applied to a severe cut or bruise than cold turpentine; it will give certain relief almost instantly. Turpentine is also a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flannel on the throat and chest, and in every severe case three or four drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inwardly. Every family should have a bottle on hand.

A young lady of New York has earned the title of "the thirsty horses' friend," because she "loves to see the horses drink." She has erected in Madison Square, in sight of her house, a stone fountain and drinking-trough at an expense of $6,000.

"Always pay as you go," said an old Aberdonian to his nephew. "But, Uncle, suppose I haven't anything to pay with?" "Then don't go."

"We're in a pickle now," said a man in a crowd. "A regular jam," said another. "Heaven preserve us!" mourned an old lady.

Punished.

You can never answer a bully with moral suasion. To put down such a man effectually, one must be able to crush him down. How "tall Gen. Simpson" served an insulting braggart in a French coffee-house, many years ago, is thus related in Colburn's United Service Magazine:

When the allies occupied Paris, the French officers, at all times superior with the small sword, and equal with the pistol to Englishmen, took every opportunity to insult the officers belonging to the army of occupation.

It had been alleged that there was a club of Frenchmen, the members of which had sworn to devote their lives to the killing off one by one of the English army.

There was one Frenchman who boasted of having killed a dozen of English officers, and promised to go on in this work.

One evening, he swaggered as usual into the cafe, and, to his astonishment, actually saw one of those hated English soldiers occupying his chair, be it remembered, that no one hitherto had dared to sit upon except himself.

Mastering his passion, he undid his sword-belt, and, having placed his sword on one side, began to insult the perfectly inoffensive English officer who sat so unconscious in his (the Frenchman's) chair.

He trod upon the English toes, he deprived the Englishman of his candles, he went from one thing on to another without at all being able in the least apparently to disturb the other's placidity.

At last he snatched the newspaper out of the Englishman's hand, and then the Briton slowly rose up, displaying to the astonished eyes of the Gaul a Guardsman some six feet six inches high.

The giant, bending across the table, seized hold of the Frenchman's nose with one hand, and his chin with the other, and, wrenching his mouth open, spat down his throat.

With a howl, the Frenchman, holding his under jaw with both hands, ran out of the room. His jaw was broken, and neither he nor any of his comrades were seen again at the cafe.

We may as well add that the English officer who thus made an example of a bully was the late Gen. Sir James Simpson, who for a time commanded in the Crimea, and who, from the day he joined the service until his death, was the tallest officer in the British army.

Heart Disease.

When an individual is reported to have died of disease of the heart, we are in the habit of regarding it as an inevitable event, as something which could not have been foreseen or prevented, and it is too much the habit, when persons suddenly fall down dead, to report the heart as the cause; this silences all inquiry and investigation, and saves the trouble and inconvenience of post mortem. A truer report would have a tendency to save many lives. It is through a report of disease of the heart that many an opium eater is let off into the grave, which covers at once his folly and his crime; the brandy-drinker, too, quietly slides around the corner thus, and is heard of no more; in short, this report of disease of the heart is the mantle of charity which the politic coroner and sympathetic physician throw around the graves of generous people.

At a scientific congress at Strasbourg it was reported that, of sixty-six persons who had suddenly died, an immediate and faithful post mortem showed that only two persons had any heart affection whatever—one sudden death only in thirty-three, from diseases of the heart. Nine out of sixty die of apoplexy—one out of every seven; while forty-six—more than two out of three—died of lung affection, half of them congestion of the lungs, that is, the lungs were so full of blood they could not work; there was not room for air enough to get in to support life. It is, then, of considerable practical interest to know some of the common every-day causes of this congestion of the lungs, a disease which, the figures above being true, kills three times as many persons at short warning as apoplexy and heart disease together. Cold feet, tight shoes, light clothing, costive bowels, sitting still until chilled through after having been warmed up by labor or a long, hasty walk; going too suddenly from a close, heated room, as a lounger, or listener, or speaker, while the body is weakened by continual application, or abstinence, or heated by a long address; these are the frightful causes of sudden death in the form of congestion of the lungs; but which, being falsely reported as disease of the heart, and regarded as an inevitable event, throws people off their guard, instead of pointing them plainly to the true causes, all of which are avoidable, and very easily so, as a general rule, when the mind has once been intelligently drawn on the subject.—Hall's Journal of Health.

THE NEW COMET.—Prof. Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory, N. York., has just verified the discovery of another comet, in the Constellation of Auriga, made July 14th, by Prof. J. M. Schaeberle, of Ann Arbor, Mich. This new comet is apparently coming directly toward the earth, and, for a telescope comet, it is very bright; indeed, it can readily be seen with a good opera glass. It is quite remarkable that it should be in just the spot where the present large comet war first seen by the naked eye in this latitude, and it shows that the two bodies must have crossed each other's paths. This makes the fourth comet discovered within ten weeks, a circumstance heretofore unknown in history. Prof. Schaeberle has duly filed his application for the Warner prize of $200, and as yet he is the only claimant.

The passengers were not so well bred as buttered, at least in one instance for one of them swore with animation and emphasis.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

SUICIDE.—A man named W. Phillips shot himself to death on the ranch of S. A. Swanger, in Antelope Valley on Saturday last. It seems he had been acting strangely for a day or two previously, and on Saturday he did not go to the house to dinner at noon, Mr. Swanger sent a boy after him to tell him to come. When the boy told him his errand Phillips, who had the revolver in his hand, fired into the air, and gave the boy no satisfaction in regard to his dinner. The boy returned to the house and reported the action of Phillips, and one of the men went down to see him. Phillips fired one more shot in the air in the presence of the man, and then deliberately placed the muzzle in his mouth and fired, killing him instantly. An inquest was held and he was buried on Sunday. No cause can be assigned for the rash act, as he seemed to be well fixed, so far as worldly affairs go, having an abundance of good clothing and considerable money. We are indebted to Mr. McNamara, of this town, for these particulars, he having come through Antelope on that day.

PERSONAL.—On Wednesday we had the pleasure of a call from Father Cassin, of Bodie, who was on a business and pleasure trip to Mono's Capital. We are always glad to see our clerical friends—particularly the liberal-minded, as we know Father Cassin to be.

George J. Forbes, of Bodie, also dropped in for a few minutes. He was feeling happy, having been admitted to practice in the Courts of this county.

ANTELOPE.—The Washoes have had a big stomp and a "big eat" in Antelope Valley, in which a large number of our Piutes took a conspicuous part, although the Piutes and Washoes do not hobnob well together—the former considering themselves a superior breed; and the Washoes being much afraid of everything connected with the Piutes; but neither tribe show any backwardness in coming forward when a "big eat" is proposed by either tribe.

NEW BOARDERS.—The county is blessed with two new boarders, who were brought down from Bodie on Tuesday by Sheriff Shippers and lodged in the County Jail. The new comers are: Do Sing, committed on a charge of attempting to commit murder with a chinese broil; and Manuel Roderegus, charged with stealing a horse. They are in good quarters and living on the best the market affords.

OUR MAILS.—The mails from the outside world to Mono now come by railroad to Hawthorne. The postal authorities have been a long while finding out that there was a railroad depot within 40 miles of Bodie. Now if they will wake up and give us a mail line to Coleville, our people will be thankful.

HELP WANTED.—Joseph Carney, of Antelope Valley, was in town to-day and informed us that help was very scarce in Antelope Valley, and that a large number of men could get employment during harvesting. Thomas Rickey requires about twenty-five hands to get in his crops. There is no need of any man being out of work now.

BUILDING MATERIAL.—Material for Ben. H. Miller's brick mansion is being hauled to the site of his intended home, and laying the foundation will shortly commence. We presume Ben will have the corner-stone laid with imposing ceremonies at Stroblidge's.

ON A LARK.—Andy Allen and Ben. H. Miller left hotel and County Clerk cares behind them yesterday and went to Twin Lakes to hunt those California lions we read so much about in the Bodie Free Press. They propose returning to-night with numerous lions, and scores of smaller fry.

IN THE FIELDS.—The absence of the Piutes from town is noticeable. Owing to the scarcity of white help our farmers have utilized them in their harvesting. They are good workers, and like the "almighty dollar" pretty well.

GET REGISTERED!—County Clerk Miller, by order of the Board of Supervisors, has opened a new Great Register for the registration of the voters of this county, and it is now in order for legal voters to have their names placed in the new book.

ADJOURNED.—The selling of the personal and real property of the Mammoth Mining Co. has been postponed by the Sheriff till August 27th and 26th. See advertisements under "New To-day."

ADMITTED.—On Wednesday Judge Briggs admitted George J. Forbes, of Bodie, to practice in the Superior Courts of this county.

PROBATE.—On Wednesday Judge Briggs appointed Father Cassin of Bodie, Administrator of the estate of Peter Burke deceased. The estate consists of money in Bank.

NEW GOODS.—Thomas Kirkwood arrived last evening from Carson with a load of goods for our merchants. J. A. Brown is in receipt of fine tobacco, cigars, etc.

DULL.—Owing to the harvest, our town is exceedingly dull. Everybody is at work, and has no time for foolishness now-a-days.

A. B. Stewart, Druggist, Bodie, has drugs, medicines, paints, oils, ammunition and cartridges.

MINING DIVIDENDS FOR THE HALF YEAR.—The market misses the million dollar dividends of the California and Consolidated Virginia mines, and it is likely to miss them for a long time to come. These dividends will be remembered to show what has been done in the way of mining, rather than what can be done. We do not ever expect to see any more magnificent dividends of that sort disbursed monthly by single mines. It takes a great many small dividends to make $1,000,000 But small dividends, if they are regular, are quite as encouraging as irregular ones on a large scale. It is gratifying to know that most of the mines which were paying dividends, in this vicinity at the beginning of the year are still keeping them up, and it is hoped they will suffer no month to pass without remembering stockholders. Mines should start in as they expect to hold out, and then the business of mining will have more friends and fewer enemies.—S. F. Bulletin.

Dr. Luke A. ## BODIE ITEMS.

We clip the following from the Bodie Free Press:

The first clean-up of the Bechtel was completed at the Noonday mill in the early part of the present week, and the shipment made. It amounted to $53,952 93. The run was of about three weeks. This must be considered as exceedingly gratifying, and would seem to fully justify the Bechtel management in the erection of a new mill—a project which has been under contemplation for some time.

At the same time it will be an encouraging circumstance to state that the bullion shipments from the district from the 1st of January to the 30th of June, the first six months of 1881, were $1,600,000. The shipments for the same period in 1880 were $1,400,000, and in 1879 they were $1,100,000. The average of shipments for the first six months of this year has been over $266,000, per month. The shipments for this year would amount, in the ratio of those for the first six months, to $3,200,000, which would be about $200,000 more than last year, but we have no hesitancy in expressing the opinion that they will amount to three and a half millions.

It will be seen that, notwithstanding the thinning out of population, and the low prices of stocks, Bodie is now producing a better average of bullion than ever before.

NEW PATENTS.—Dewey & Co.'s Scientific Press Patent Agency has received official notice of the issue of the following patents to Pacific coast inventors: 9,793, pillow sham holder, (re-issue), J. R. Cases of poisining from eating Corn Starch are altogether too frequent not to excite more attention and investigation. It is bad enough to have our food adulterated with harmless ingredients, but when it comes to the introduction of poisonous substances it is about time to cry a halt. We have our inspector of weights and measures why should we not have our inspector of Groceries and other articles of food. ## POPULAR SCIENCE.

REMARKABLE SURGICAL OPERATION.—A singular surgical operation has been performed successfully (we learn from Comptes Rendus) by M. Kœberle. It the amputation of no less than two metres of the smaller intestine? The subject was a young woman of 22.

DEPTH OF THE OCEAN.—The average depth of the ocean (says Dr. Gwyn Jeffreys) between latitudes 60 deg. north and 60 deg. south is nearly three miles, or 2,500 fathoms. The greatest depth which has been ascertained by sounding is five miles and a quarter, or 4,620 fathoms, and occurs in the Northwest Pacific ocean; it is nearly equal to the height of Mount Everest, the highest known mountain, in the proportion of 27,720 to 29,000.

A NEW type-writing machine has been patented by E. Recordon, of Paris, in which the actuating keys, together with the type-levers, are arranged in the form of a fan in such a manner that the operator can see what he is writing. The paper is carried in a vertical frame, and, when the line of writing is finished, the frame carrying the paper moves back and passes automatically to the following line. Several copies can be simultaneously obtained by inserting sheets of carbon paper between the writing paper.

BREATHING SOUND OF THE TELEPHONE.—Mr. Stroh some time ago made the discovery that a disconnected telephone emitted a peculiar soft breathing sound when a magnet was moved to and fro in close proximity to it. The question was reintroduced recently before the English Society of Telegraph Engineers and Electricians, when Mr. Heaviside stated that he finds a disconnected telephone is sensitive to the induction of currents in a neighboring wire. Mr. Stroh said that the peculiar breathing sound was of a different kind when the magnet was approaching the telephone to what it was when it was receding. Prof. Hughes is of opinion that the action of the magnet on the telephone is of an undulatory nature, and the subject is one that seems likely to reward the patient investigator.

A RAILWAY REGIMENT.—In Germany there now exists what is called a "railway regiment." Since 1876 it has consisted of two battalions of four companies each. Formed exterially on the model of the corps of pioneers, it is recruited chiefly among the handicrafts connected with railways. In case of war, each of the eight companies divides into several companies of construction, and one working company, of 200 men each. The instruction for these two branches is given in summer, both in the way of practical exercise in construction and repair, and in practical working of a railway line called the military railway. The most frequent exercise is the construction of tunnels, considering the common event of tunnels being blocked in time of war. The organization referred to is another instance of that remarkable foresight to which Germany owes her military success.

THAT the germs of disease may live long seems to be proved by recent experiments of a French committee directed by M. Pasteur. Seven sheep were led daily for a few hours to a piece of ground where some animals that died of anthracoid disease, or charbon, had been buried twelve years previously. Two of them caught the disease and died. There was no grass for the sheep to eat, and it is thought these two must have received the germs in the course of smelling about the ground, as sheep generally do. It may be added that on some ground of that farm, where diseased animals had been buried, vegetables are now grown; and M. Pasteur asked the farmer if any employes, etc., about the farm had been affected. He knew of none, but showed a healed sore of malignant pustula (the same kind of disease) on his own face. M. Pasteur supposes that, if the vegetables eaten had not been cooked, there might have been a different tale. The disease, too, might be communicated by the agency of insects, etc.

Many farmers' wives lead a dreary sort of life. They work from early morn till late at night with no time for recreation or reading. They can find very little time to read the family newspaper. This hard life they endure with cheerfulness and are well satisfied if their labors are appreciated, which, sad to say, is not always the case. There are some very unreasonable, selfish, and unthinking men who find no word of approbation or appreciation of the labors of their faithful wives. A few words of hearty appreciation are sometimes more precious than gold to the weary and discouraged.—Lewiston Journal.

How often we hear women who do their own cooking say that by the time they have prepared a meal, and it is ready for the table, they are too tired to eat! One way to mitigate this evil is to take, about half an hour before dinner, a raw egg, beat it until light, put in a little sugar and milk, flavor it and "drink it down;" it will remove the faint, tired-out feeling, and will not spoil your appetite for dinner. Plenty of fresh air in the kichen does a great deal to relieve this trouble, and you do not then take your dinner in "at the pores," as Dickens' old Joey declared he took in the wine.

Nice white candy is easily made. Take one quart of granulated sugar, one pint of water; two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, boil just as you do molasses candy, but do not stir it; you can tell when it is done by trying it in cold water. Pull it as if it were molasses candy; have a dish near by with some vanilla in it, and work in enough to flavor it as you pull; put in a cold room, and the next day you will have delicious candy.

Never overload a team nor discourage it by a too heavy pull at first starting, nor start from a bad place if it is possible to avoid it.

Cramp in the Stomach: Take ten drops of lavender on sugar and repeat the dose every ten minutes until relieved.

If you get stung or bitten by flies, insects, etc., apply a little soda or ammonia.

An English firm has commenced the manufacture of paper blankets. They are made as soft, and are warmer and altogether lighter and cheaper than their woolen predecessors.

A recipe for lemon pie vaguely adds:—"Then sit on a stove and stir constantly." We would like to see the person that can sit on a hot stove and not stir constantly.
